ALLEN and Clevertask announce strategic acquisition

Since the early 2000s, the ALLEN Group (world leader in consulting and engineering technology) has continued to invest in the Spanish market through its namesake subsidiary, ALLEN SPAIN, and is now strengthening its offering in the market through the strategic acquisition of Clevertask.

This alliance is undoubtedly a necessary way to take Clevertask to the next step, that of generating new opportunities and new capabilities for our teams and clients. "This is definitely a path that will take us, working together with the ALLEN Group, to become an international benchmark in the field of digital transformation and technological innovation", explains Pere Vandellos, CEO of Clevertask. "We are confident and convinced that all the benefits of belonging to a prestigious international group, combined with our specialisation and differential approach, will be the key to our guaranteed success."

Clevertask will continue to operate under the guidance of its founders and current management team while benefiting from the synergies, knowledge and corporate services of the ALLEN Group.
